The heroes's wives

I'm Andromache, Hector's devote wife. I have dedicated all my life to him and to our son Astianatte. If I lose you, Hector, to die would be better than to stay alive. What a sad destiny ..sigh

I'm Penelope, Ulysses's wife and Telemachus's mother; I have always been faithful to my husband and I have been waiting for his return from the Trojan war for twenty years.

The heroes's wives

I'm Helen, Menelao's wife.
I fled to Troy for Paris' sake Menelao, furious, gathered a big fleet together with his brother Agamennon and some other Achaeans.
My beauty and charm seduced the two men who brought to the biggest war in history and lots of blood has been spilt because of me!

I'm Clitemnestra, Agamennone's wife. He was a cruel man who sacrificed my beloved daughter Iphygenia, but I had my revenge . When he returned to Mycenae after the Trojan War, I killed him with a double-bladed axe, with the help of my lover, Egisto.
My hands are stained with his blood!

NAUSICAA

Nausicaa is the daughter of King Alcinoo. She finds Odysseus on the beach, who has been shipwrecked, and takes him to his father, who provides him with the boats that will take him to Ithaca. Nausicaa married Telemachus, son of Odysseus, and had a son named Persepolis or Ptoliporto.

*And now again my well-loved son is gone forth in a hollow ship, a mere child, knowing naught of toils and the gatherings of men, and tremble for him, and fear lest aught befall him, whether it be in the land of the men to whom he is gone, or on the sea.
